BACKGROUND & RATIONALE

Water credits are a relatively new instrument that has recently experienced an exponential acceleration in adoption globally, both on a voluntary and regulated basis. In this session, we will explore concrete experiences of Water Credit use across different contexts, as well as the outlook for their development through 2030.

OBJECTIVES

The objective is to encourage the audience to envision how Water Credits could be applied within their own specific areas of activity.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Policymakers, utilities, financing institutions.

EXPECTED OUTCOMES

We hope that, building on the use cases shared by the speakers, partnerships, projects and initiatives will emerge among participants, replicating successful models or developing new ones across different areas of application.
